Mike Finkle Named One of the Nations Top 150 Financial Advisors for Physicians

For a number of years the prestigious trade magazine Medical Economics which is distributed to more than 169,000 subscribing physicians across the country, has researched and published a list they call the 150 best financial advisors for doctors. The last list published in 2006 was revised in the November 7, 2008 edition of the magazine and included H. Michael Finkle the senior partner of Finkle, Lewis & Kittell Wealth Advisors of Raymond James & Associates in Danville, Illinois.

Finkle who is in his 42nd year in the investment advisory business heads a team of five professionals including three investment advisors, who service high net worth individual clients residing in 30 states. This is not the first national recognition received by the veteran investor as Finkle was named to the Advisor Hall of Fame by Research Magazine in 1992 and in 1993 received the Outstanding Broker Award from Registered Rep magazine, an investment trade publication. The Research Magazine Advisor Hall of Fame was based in part on industry experience, assets under management, client service, and recognition from their peers and the broader community. The Registered Rep Outstanding Broker Award was based in part on industry experience, good compliance standing, money management performance, client service, business building and peer recognition.

The Medical Economics magazine announcement article outlined their selection criteria which included investment knowledge and experience, continuing education, length of time in the industry, geographic location, a preference for a fee based business model, minimum sized portfolio requirements, prior experience working with physicians as clients and a clean SEC and FINRA compliance record.
