Investments:

Getting back to my introduction, today we have some issues similar to the early thirties. No, I'm not talking about the numbers, e.g., the worst bear "since," the best "month," the best one day gain ever, the best single month gain ever, the worst week, and of course, the charts that look strikingly similar. What about all of the talking heads on TV? All of these statistics and opinions don't come close to matching the emotions that many of us feel.

Just like when you were a child and your mom said not to touch the stove, it was hot. We had to find out for ourselves. Once we felt the pain we vowed to not do that again! As I mentioned earlier, in 1929 people borrowed everything they could to buy stocks because they "only go up." Sounds kind of like the housing market just a few years ago. And, in 1933 when you could borrow money at 2% to buy stocks paying 8% dividends, there weren't many takers. This is quite similar to residential housing currently. Many people today are reluctant to buy real estate because of the recent drop in prices. Accordingly many people are reluctant to buy stocks because of the recent market. Too much depression talk.

Now here are some stats between today and the "Great" depression which should help you understand that times may be tough, but we are not in a depression:

Today, mortgage failures upwards of 10%. During the depression, 50%.

Today, bank failures since Oct 2007, 58. During the depression, 10,000.

Today, unemployment may hit 10%. During the depression, 30%.

Today, GDP has fallen 6%. During the depression, 27%.

Today, consumer spending has dropped 3.1%. During the depression, 41%.

The list goes on.....

How do you get past the emotions? The fear? The best way I can explain it is to look at the people that have been through it and hung in there, year in, year out. Some of the best investors have been through many ups and downs in the markets, and they continue to believe. I read an article recently about 3 money managers who were around during the depression. Yes, they are still in the business. Irving Kahn, at 103 years old. Walter Schloss, at 92. Seth Glickenhau at age 95. All three of these guys have seen it all and if you ask them if they should cash it all in and quit they would tell you that the recent bear market hasn't changed their philosophy or their belief in the markets or this country. All of them say that there are always opportunities.

So what do we do? Well, first I think we need to keep our faith. Every day we hear nothing but negative opinions and we must focus on what is positive. We live in what I think to be the greatest country in the world. You can rise to any economic level you are willing to work hard for.

Second, I think we need to have our voices heard by our government. All of us have concerns about the National Debt, the budget, reckless spending at all levels and all of the politics that go with them. Many think we don't have a voice. But we do. WE can vote. WE can vote them out! WE can put pressure on them for a change. But we have to do it. We have to do our homework.

I've included with this letter a list of all the local and state politicians; their phone numbers and addresses. Write them, call them. Make your voice heard! Tell your friends, tell your neighbors. Each of us may not be able to make a huge difference, but collectively we may be able to accomplish what many believe is impossible.

As I write this letter, on the news tonight, they are talking about laying off 80 teachers from one of our local school districts. Are there fewer children? The state is laying off workers by the hundreds. Has the population of California dropped? No, I think that the numbers are the same, but the management is absolutely terrible. Think about GM's probable bankruptcy. Do you think it was the workers fault? That GM cannot pay its bills.

Some people say our current situation is a failure of capitalism. I think it is a failure of morality. We need to set these politicians straight.

Third, how is your cash flow? For many retired investors, it makes a lot of sense to have a year's worth of withdrawals sitting in cash and a couple of years worth sitting in short term bonds. This gives you a three year cushion to weather the storm before you have to tap the equity side of your portfolio. Think about that.

Financial Planning:

Right now, the best thing you can do is to sit down with your advisor and re-visit your game plan. The world may feel different, but it really hasn't changed much.

Most retirees will most likely live 20 to 30 years into retirement and need to plan accordingly. (That means your investment portfolio must be designed to help get you through markets similar to this one, while recognizing the need to keep up with inflation and do it in a tax efficient manner.)

One of the most important things you can do is to update us on your financial position regularly. That way we are aware of things that may make it necessary to adjust your portfolio allocation. Don't forget, right now is also a good time to review your life, health, disability, and long term care insurance policies, along with annuities and your cash holdings to make sure they still fit your plan. Talk to your advisor about it.

Personal:

In late June, I will be attending a Raymond James regional conference in Orange County. The conference includes three days of workshops with updates on current issues, portfolio management, and financial planning. I will spend a whole Saturday with another Raymond James advisor to review how his office is staffed and some of the systems he uses in his day to day practice. The intent is to be able to bring some of that information back to my office to improve our services to you.

Judy and I will be participating in a half-marathon in San Francisco this July. We chose the first half of a full marathon which will include several hills and the opportunity to run across the Golden Gate Bridge. The bridge sounds like fun, but the hills will be tough. We have been training extra hard.

On Mother's Day we hosted a brunch. I enjoy cooking, so I made all of the food (except for the 24th Street Café biscuits and gravy) and Judy set up the tables. We invited our mom's and our sisters and their spouses. We had a great meal and enjoyed spending the time together.

Tori is doing much better. The screws holding her broken leg together were removed in April, and she no longer needs to wear a cast. She is walking on her leg now and must spend time stretching her joints and rebuilding her muscles. She is doing well in school and she is looking forward to her junior year in high school.

My family and I thank you for your confidence in us. Please call me if you have any questions or concerns.

Warmest regards,
