

Monday, July 11, 2022

Good morning:

The June jobs report announced last week reported that the U.S. economy added 372,000 new jobs, well ahead of the estimated 250,000. Overall unemployment remained at 3.6%, while average hourly earnings rose 5.1% from a year ago. However, with CPI up 8.6% over the same period, real wage growth did not keep up with inflation. Nevertheless, the strength in the U.S. labor market served as a bright spot in a market worried about an impending recession.

By week's end, all major equity indices were higher. Leading the rebound was the tech-heavy NASDAQ +4.58%, followed by the S&P 500 +1.98% and the Dow Jones Industrial Average +0.82%. However, there are still plenty of other issues for the market to digest in the near future. Since employment is a lagging indicator, the June jobs report does not completely remove the risk of a recession starting at some point in the coming months. It may suggest, though, that in an environment of such strong labor demand, any contraction in the economy could be a relatively mild one for American workers.

Next week's CPI report is not expected to show any relief in soaring prices. Therefore, the strong jobs report coupled with another hot CPI number should give the Fed plenty of justification for another 0.75% rate hike later this month. What happens after that still remains very data dependent, although the market has likely priced-in this month's rate hike along with several more this year. With today's softer opening, it is clear that we remain in difficult and highly volatile waters for short-term investors.

It's important to realize that we are all still in the wake of series of unprecedented events. A global pandemic to which most of the world responded with widespread business closures, sequesters and restrictions, followed by massive fiscal and monetary stimulus that drove certain asset prices higher. Instead of acknowledging this reality, the Fed called the rising inflation "transitory" for many months and hoped it would go away on its own. By the time that approach was recognized as clearly incorrect, inflation had worked its way throughout much of the economy like a virus. In response, the Fed now finds themselves with the difficult job of removing this virus without killing the patient. Although this will take some time to play out, we believe they will ultimately be successful in reducing inflation without toppling the entire economy.

To continue this discussion with additional expert industry perspective, we encourage you to join us on Wednesday's private client call with Dr. Matt Sommer, Head of Janus Henderson's Wealth Advisor Services Team. A separate invitation was emailed last week for this event, but we will send it again later today.

Have a great week!

Mark and Jeff

Mark S. Loftus, CFP®
Managing Partner & Founder, LPWP
Registered Principal, RJFS

Jeffrey C. Preusser, CFP®

Senior Partner, LPWP

Registered Principal, RJFS

O: 630.566.9200 // T: 844.890.8750 // F: 630.566.9292

1901 Butterfield Road, Suite 100, Downers Grove, IL 60515

www.loftus-preusser.com

Raymond James is not affiliated with Matt Sommer, or Janus Henderson Investors.

Loftus & Preusser Wealth Partners is not a registered broker/dealer and is independent of Raymond James Financial Services. Securities offered through Raymond James Financial Services, Inc., Member FINRA/SIPC. Investment advisory services offered through Raymond James Financial Services Advisors, Inc.

Raymond James Financial Services does not accept orders and/or instructions regarding your account by e-mail, voice mail, fax or any alternate method. Transactional details do not supersede normal trade confirmations or statements. E-mail sent through the Internet is not secure or confidential. Raymond James Financial Services reserves the right to monitor all email.

Any information provided in this e-mail has been prepared from sources believed to be reliable, but is not guaranteed by Raymond James Financial Services and is not a complete summary or statement of all available data necessary for making an investment decision. Any information provided is for informational purposes only and does not constitute a recommendation. Raymond James Financial Services and its employees may own options, rights or warrants to purchase any of the securities mentioned in e-mail. This e-mail is intended only for the person or entity to which it is addressed and may contain confidential and/or privileged material. Any review, retransmission, dissemination or other use of, or taking of any action in reliance upon, this information by persons or entities other than the intended recipient is prohibited. If you received this message in error, please contact the sender immediately and delete the material from your computer.

DISCLAIMER:

If you no longer want to receive this Monday Outlook email, simply reply to this email with "REMOVE" or "OPT OUT" in the subject line and we will remove you from our email list.

Opinions expressed in this email are those of the author and are not necessarily those of Raymond James. The information contained in this report does not purport to be a complete description of the securities, markets, or developments referred to in this material nor is it a recommendation.

The information has been obtained from sources considered to be reliable, but we do not guarantee that the foregoing material is accurate or complete.

All investments are subject to risk regardless of strategy selected. Individual investor's results will vary. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Forward looking data is subject to change at any time and there is no assurance that projections will be realized. Diversification and strategic asset allocation do not ensure a profit or protect against a loss.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA), commonly known as “The Dow” is an index representing 30 stocks of companies maintained and reviewed by the editors of the Wall Street Journal.

S&P 500 Index is an unmanaged, market value-weighted index of 500 stocks generally representative of the broad stock market. An investment cannot be made directly in a market index.

The NASDAQ Composite Index is a broad-based capitalization-weighted index of stocks in all three NASDAQ tiers: Global Select, Global Market and Capital Market.

The Russell 2000 Index measures the performance of the 2,000 smallest companies in the Russell 3000 Index, which represent approximately 8% of the total market capitalization of the Russell 3000 Index.

Investing in small cap stocks generally involves greater risks, and therefore, may not be appropriate for every investor.

The companies engaged in the communications and technology industries are subject to fierce competition and their products and services may be subject to rapid obsolescence.

International investing involves special risks, including currency fluctuations, differing financial accounting standards, and possible political and economic volatility.

Investing in emerging markets can be riskier than investing in well-established foreign markets. Investing involves risk and investors may incur a profit or a loss.

Diversification does not ensure a profit or guarantee against a loss. Sector investments are companies engaged in business related to a specific sector. They are subject to fierce competition and their products and services may be subject to rapid obsolescence. There are additional risks associated with investing in an individual sector, including limited diversification.

Holding stocks for the long-term does not insure a profitable outcome. Investing in stocks always involves risk, including the possibility of losing one's entire investment.

Market return and statistical data obtained from: https://am.jpmorgan.com/blob-gim/1383452890099/83456/weekly_market_recap.pdf?segment=AMERICAS_US_ADV&locale=en_US

Links are being provided for information purposes only. Raymond James is not affiliated with and does not endorse, authorize or sponsor any of the listed websites or their respective sponsors. Raymond James is not responsible for the content of any website or the collection or use of information regarding any website's users and/or members.

Keep in mind that individuals cannot invest directly in any index, and index performance does not include transaction costs or other fees, which will affect actual investment performance. Individual investor's results will vary.

In the event that you no longer wish to receive these commercial emails please reply to this email and in the body of the email request that we remove you from our email list. The information contained within this commercial email has been obtained from sources considered reliable, but we do not guarantee the foregoing material is accurate or complete.

Raymond James and its advisors do not offer tax or legal advice. You should discuss any tax or legal matters with the appropriate professional.