FRAMEWORK

Raymond James believes there is a minimal risk of Modern slavery occurring within its business and supply chains, largely because its supply chains are not complex and various steps have been implemented to mitigate modern slavery and human trafficking.

Raymond James' activities and operations are integrated globally, with core risk management policies and standards established at the enterprise level. Each subsidiary and affiliate may establish its own policies, procedures, and controls to comply with all applicable local laws while maintaining the spirit of the enterprise-wide policies and standards. Raymond James' Board of Directors has established an Enterprise Risk Management framework that ensures that Raymond James' risks are managed in a sound manner and escalated as appropriate.

RAYMOND JAMES CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT & ETHICS

The Raymond James Code of Business Conduct & Ethics (the "Code") defines the way Raymond James conducts business. The principles and standards outlined in the Code apply to all aspects of Raymond James' business and the way Raymond James engages its stakeholders. The Code is designed to support a culture where ethical and responsible behavior is expected and ingrained into the company's business dealings. It includes an ongoing commitment to doing business in a sound and ethical manner, while outlining a strong stance against all forms of modern slavery, including abuse and exploitation resulting from various forms of human trafficking or human rights violations.

The Code states that Raymond James does not knowingly employ, conduct business, or otherwise knowingly engage with any individual, supplier, or company that does not abide by applicable labor laws and regulations, including laws that address child labor, forced labor, slavery, human trafficking, equal pay, and non-discrimination in their workforce. This includes Raymond James' commitment to the elimination of the "worst forms of child labor," as defined by International Labour Organization (ILO) Convention 138 & 182, from suppliers' or the company's supply chains.

All associates must read and acknowledge the Code annually, which underscores Raymond James' values and its commitment to ensuring a workplace that includes equal opportunity, dignity and respect, including with respect to its suppliers, affiliates and partners.

ENTERPRISE POLICIES

Raymond James is guided by employment laws in the markets where it operates, and by federal and state securities laws governing the products and services offered. Raymond James further supports fundamental principles of human rights in each region of the world in which it operates, and expects that its subsidiaries, associates, affiliated representatives, contingent workers, consultants, and suppliers (collectively Raymond James' personnel) do the same.

The RJF Enterprise Risk Management Committee (ERMC) is responsible for overseeing the execution of a framework for the development, review, approval, and communication of RJF policies, standards, procedures, and related policy documents across the Raymond James Enterprise. Each enterprise policy is reviewed and approved by the RJF Enterprise Risk Management Committee, the Raymond James' Board of Directors, or a board-level committee thereof.

Examples of enterprise policies which seek to highlight/prevent modern slavery include:

1. ENTERPRISE INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY ACCEPTABLE USE POLICY

The RJF Enterprise Information Technology Acceptable Use Policy is applicable to associates, independent financial advisors and their registered and non-registered associates, and third-party suppliers that are obligated to follow Raymond James policies and standards. This policy outlines prohibited actions, including purchasing sex or displaying materials that may adversely or negatively reflect upon Raymond James pertaining to the use of Raymond James provided equipment, including its network, applications, laptops, email and personal devices, to the extent they are used to conduct Raymond James business.

2. CORPORATE TRAVEL AND EXPENSE POLICY

The RJF Corporate Travel and Expense Policy is applicable to associates and other personnel who travel on behalf of Raymond James and contains measures to restrict various types of expenses and methods of payment typically associated with modern slavery including the various forms of human trafficking and clarifies that violations of the code or other related policies are prohibited. The policy:

- a. states that all material out-of-pocket expenses require a detailed receipt

- b. caps spending on laundry service, tips, parking and other services known to be associated to human/sex trafficking
- c. contains an extensive list of non-reimbursable expenses (including adult entertainment)
- d. encourages associates to obtain and use a corporate card for all business-related travel/expenses

3. ENTERPRISE GIFTS AND ENTERTAINMENT POLICY

The RJF Enterprise Gifts and Entertainment Policy is applicable to associates, independent financial advisors and their registered and non-registered associates, and third-party suppliers that are obligated to follow Raymond James policies and standards. The Policy specifies that those subject to the Policy are prohibited from offering, giving, soliciting, or accepting gifts and entertainment, regardless of value, if the gift or entertainment:

- a. violates laws or regulations, or could harm Raymond James's reputation
- b. is so frequent or extensive that it may raise the appearance of impropriety
- c. could be viewed as a bribe, pay-off, improper influence, or having the expectation of a return favor
- d. includes sexually explicit content and activities, regardless of local or prevailing laws, or is inconsistent with ethical business practices
- e. is in the form of cash or cash equivalents, received from a product sponsor in the U.S.

4. ENTERPRISE ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING, COUNTER-TERRORIST FINANCING, AND CUSTOMER INFORMATION PROGRAM POLICY

Raymond James takes a risk-based approach in its commitment to combatting money laundering, corruption, terrorist financing and other financial crimes, and has implemented policies and standards applicable to all subsidiaries and affiliates, with each subsidiary and affiliate implementing its own procedures and internal controls designed to comply with the enterprise policies and standards, as well as applicable local laws and regulations. Since proceeds stemming from the heinous acts of the various forms of modern slavery are criminally derived, these would be included in the scope of regulatory reporting under RJF's Enterprise AML, Counter-Terrorist Financing ("CTF"), and Customer Information Program ("CIP") Policy and related procedures.

RJF's Enterprise AML, CTF and CIP Policy points to the Enterprise AML/FCM Prohibited Clients Standard which specifies that Raymond James will not conduct business with any client who has "pled guilty to, or have been convicted of, any of the following crimes or of a crime that constitutes knowingly facilitating any of the following criminal acts: slavery; forced or coerced labor or servitude; forced or coerced sexual exploitation; any other criminal act that is comparable to those stated in this list; and/or Human Trafficking for the purpose of any of the preceding criminal acts."

OVERSIGHT

RJF has implemented oversight, training, and reporting to help evaluate and manage risk across the organization, including the potential for modern slavery.

RJF implements the following risk management elements:

1. SUPPLIER RISK MANAGEMENT

Suppliers undergo formal evaluations of potential risks. RJF contracts contain language that requires suppliers to comply with all applicable regulations, including that of modern slavery. Additionally, when suppliers are on-boarded, they will be screened for adverse media among other things, including human rights violations and human trafficking.

2. ENTERPRISE AML AND FCM GROUP

The Enterprise AML and FCM Group has developed extensive policies, procedures and controls designed to detect and report money laundering, corruption, terrorist financing and other financial crimes. These policies, procedures and controls seek to protect Raymond James and its reputation from bad actors who may attempt to utilize Raymond James in the furtherance of crime and legitimizing illicit proceeds. Some subsidiaries rely upon the control-related services conducted by the Enterprise AML and FCM Group to fulfill their AML program requirements, including adverse media screening and suspicious activity investigations and subsequent reporting.

The Enterprise AML and FCM Group screens all clients for adverse media including Human Trafficking, human rights violations, and prostitution via automated screening and open-source search text strings.

The Enterprise AML and FCM Group will continue to evaluate red flags and industry trends to ensure appropriate adequate transaction monitoring and effective training.

Under applicable laws, the RJF AML and FCM Group will file a Suspicious Activity Report (SAR) or a Suspicious Transaction Report (STR) as applicable, where it has a suspicion that a client's source of funds is derived from criminal activity to include modern slavery or human trafficking, or if any transactions or activities are suspected to involve modern slavery or human trafficking.

3. RED FLAGS LIST

The RJF Master Red Flags list includes comprehensive red flags lists to include those associated with modern slavery and human trafficking, including: payments for online services; advertising; classifieds ads; web hosting; excessive ATM activity; payments for hotels; airlines; bus passes; ride sharing; medical clinics; student recruitment; employment agencies; telephone service providers; frequent deposits of cash or monetary equivalents below reporting thresholds.

Raymond James's subsidiaries may not implement/rely on enterprise-level risk management procedures and controls but, while maintaining the spirit of the enterprise-wide risk management procedures and controls, may implement their own to comply with all applicable local laws.

REPORTING

Raymond James has established protocols and procedures to ensure unethical behavior and/or activities are properly escalated and reported, either by upwards reporting or confidential and anonymous reporting. Raymond James has established an internal confidential and anonymous reporting hotline so that associates may report potentially unlawful, improper or questionable conduct, including with regard to suppliers or other third parties, ethics violations, and accounting, internal controls or auditing matter concerns.

ONGOING PLANS

1. TRAINING AND EDUCATION

Beginning in 2020, Raymond James has incorporated human trafficking educational topics and red flags training into Raymond James' firm continuing education, which all associates/affiliates receive annually.

The RJF AML and FCM Group facilitates peer discussions and engages law enforcement to keep abreast of ever changing and developing typologies and to keep the flow of information fluid.

Various members of the Enterprise AML and FCM Group are active participants in local anti-human trafficking non-profits seeking to assist survivors of human trafficking and provide valuable education to the public.

RJF subsidiaries may deliver training and education in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations.

2. CONTINUOUS EVALUATION OF EMERGING RISKS

Raymond James intends to continue working to reduce the risk of potential modern slavery or human trafficking in its operations or supply chains by continuously analyzing emerging risks to identify modifications to the established control framework, and by continuing to develop applicable transactional typologies and evaluating whether additional transaction monitoring scenarios are necessary.

This Modern slavery Statement has been approved by the Raymond James' Executive Committee and Board of Directors.
