

Raymond James will donate $100,000 toward Hurricane Harvey relief

Just days after Category 4 Hurricane Harvey made landfall along the Texas coast, tens of thousands of people from Houston, southeast Texas and southwest Louisiana are still reeling from the impacts of the storm. Countless residents have been trapped in their flooding homes, while others escaped to local shelters, leaving their damaged homes behind. As rain is set to continue in the days ahead, the flooding will likely increase, with some areas receiving up to 50 inches of rainfall.

The effects of Hurricane Harvey have already been devastating, with countless people injured and the death toll rising. Houston, the fourth-largest city in the United States, has been engulfed by flooding. At this point, the amount of long-term damage to homes, businesses and government buildings throughout the area is unknown.

Teams like the American Red Cross have been working around the clock since the storm made impact to provide lifesaving shelter, meals, relief supplies and support to individuals and families in need.

It's important to let those whose lives were affected by this severe weather know the rest of the country is here to help, too. To show our support, Raymond James will donate $100,000 toward Hurricane Harvey relief efforts in impacted areas. This donation will help provide rescue, shelter, food, relief items, emotional support and assistance to those in need. If you would like to help, I encourage you to make a donation – of any amount – through your local Red Cross chapter (redcross.org or 1-800-RED-CROSS) or another relief organization of your choice.
